With 12 registrars and typists on duty at Odeon Hall Wednesday from 7 a. m. to 9 p. m. none of the 238 registrants had to wait more than a few minutes to be accommodated. FLAVIN GRAY

A very pretty home wedding occurred at 2:30 on Saturday afternoon, October 5, at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Jasper S. Gray, Manchester-by-the-Sea, Mass., when their daughter, Miss Vicki Diana Gray, was united in marriage to George Robert Flavin, son of Mr. and Mrs. Redmond Thomas Flavin of West Paris, Maine.

The wedding ceremony was performed in an impressive manner by Rev. Paul A. McElroy of the Congregational church in the presence of relatives and a few friends.

The bride wore her mother's wedding gown made of satin and in an ivory tulle, and carried a shower bouquet of gardenias and hollyhocks. A three-foot length veil was caught up with orange blossoms.

The maid of honor, Miss Vicki Flavin of Paris, New Jersey, sister of the groom, wore a tulle leaf dress and hat with gold accessories and carried a bouquet of yellow and orange chrysanthemums.

Malcolm Donahue of Hartford, Conn., uncle of the bride, was best man.

The double ring service was used, the bride being given away by her father.

The wedding march was played by Mrs. Samuel Cushing, cousin of the bride.

The interior of the home was prettily decorated for the event with chrysanthemums and autumn leaves. The bridal party stood under an arch of flowers which was attractively placed in the bay window.

After the ceremony a reception was held for those present.

Mr. C. W. V. that was in charge of the guest book and Miss Barbara Hodgdon of the gift room, where there were many useful and beautiful gifts displayed.

After the reception the bride and groom left on a motor trip to Washington, D. C. and the World's Fair. Both young people have the heartiest congratulations of all who know them.

GOULD 0—NORWAY 7

The Gould Academy team was again the victim of a touchdown pass that spelled defeat for the second Saturday in a row. The local boys had a big edge on Norway throughout the game, pushing the visitors up and down the field, but they lacked the spark or scoring punch to push across into scoring territory. Early in the first period a drive that was touchdown bound was halted by a Gould fumble recovered by Norway.

In the opening minutes of the final period, Gould had the ball on Norway's one foot line but Norway's fighting team held and the best scoring opportunity of the day was over. The Gould team rang up 15 first downs to the visitors' five, but Norway's one pass proved the only play that could reach scoring territory.

WILLKIE RALLY

Under the auspices of the Woman's Republican Club of Bethel, a meeting will be held on Friday evening at 7:30 at the home of Mrs. William R. Chapman. Special items of importance will be presented. All who are interested both men and women are cordially invited to be present, take part in the discussion and assist in the promotion of the "Willkie campaign." The time is short, the work is great, the consequences still greater. Everyone must work to win the victory that is essential to our safety and future well being. Come to the meeting and be ready to do your part. Every true American is needed these days. Cleo A. Russell Pres. W. R. C.

GOULD TRAVELS TO PARIS

This week the Gould platoon leaders will trek to South Paris for their only game away this season. The team with two tough losses behind them are determined to break into the win column again. The men are all back in good shape again and hope to get a few breaks of their own this week. The team has the power, as shown even in defeat, to put on a real scoring spree if they can retain their punch at the goal line and hang on to the ball once they get started. Gould-Paris games are traditionally the high light games of the season and fans are assured of a real battle Saturday. To her credit, South Paris has a tie with Mexico, and wins over Livermore Falls and Fryeburg Academy.

BATES-VERMONT DEBATE HERE FRIDAY

An intercollegiate debate between the men of Bates College and the University of Vermont will be held in the William Bingham Gymnasium at Gould Academy on Friday, October 18th. The subject, "Resolved: that the power of the federal government should be increased," should be of interest to many, as it is also the national high school question for debate, and is being used by the Bates High School League this year. Several high schools in this area are members of the Bates League which supervises intercollegiate debating competition. Both University of Vermont and Bates are well known in the forensic field and the debate should prove very worthwhile. The formal discussion will begin at 7:30 P. M. with Principal Elwood F. Ireland of Gould presiding. Following the debate, there will be a period for discussion and questions from the audience. Townspeople and members of nearby high schools have been invited to attend.

GARDEN CLUB MEMBERS

SEE LESTON WHEELER'S BOTANICAL COLLECTION

Ten members of the Garden Club of Bethel visited the home of Leston Wheeler at Northwales, Bethel, last Wednesday afternoon. Mr. Wheeler, who is a botanist, and who belongs to several botanical societies, has been collecting specimens for the past 10 years. He has a collection given to him by his father and grandfather. The club will meet again Nov. 13 at the home of Mrs. Laurence Lord for the annual meeting.

STEPHEN DAVIS

Stephen Davis died Saturday afternoon at his home at Bryant Pond after a year's illness.

He was born in Greene, Nov. 18, 1863, the son of Henry and Diana Davis. Until two years ago he was proprietor of the Davis Cream Parlor. He had previously lived in Turner and West Paris and was a member of Grant Lodge, F. and A. M., at West Paris.

Mr. Davis leaves his wife, formerly Lola Dunham; a son, Walter; two stepsons, William Bird of Auburn and Clyde Bird of Lyndonville; a sister, Mrs. Lida Tyndall of Portland and a granddaughter, Miss Lola Davis of Bryant Pond.

Funeral services were held from the Bryant Pond Baptist Church Tuesday afternoon. Interment was at the village cemetery in Turner.

FULLERTON HOME IN ALBANY BURNED

The farm buildings of Calvert Fullerton in South Albany were destroyed by fire last Thursday night. Two cows, two heifers and a bull calf were lost in the blaze which razed the two story house, stable, barn, and out building. Volunteers were able to save the household furnishings, horses, and hens.

The cause of the fire is not known but it evidently started in the barn. Loss was estimated at $2,000. The North Waterford fire department was called but the fire was beyond their control when they arrived.

THE LONG AND BETTER DAYS

A great man stood before the microphone the other day in a city scarred by bombs. Fires were raging at the docks of its historic river and there was a threat of creative bombing in the night to come.

The man spoke calmly, courageously to the people of an harassed empire. He told them of the situation as it stood that awful day and warned them of the impending invasion. There was no effort to minimize the frightfulness of the ordeal before them. Yet there was no sign of flinching.

He called upon them to remember the greatness of their past and to realize the significance of the battle they were waging. Then in closing that magnificent speech, Winston Churchill turned for a moment from the horror of the present conflict and looking toward the future, spoke confidently of "the long and better days that are to come."

If the Prime Minister of Great Britain, in such an hour, could speak with confidence of the future, how much more hopeful should we be, here in the United States. Not only because we are an ocean away from the actual conflict but because this country of ours was founded for the sake of those "better days" as they were envisioned by our forefathers 200 years ago.

With our representative democracy and our free enterprise system, we have already come nearer to those "better days" of which great men in every age have dreamed. The highest standard of living the world has ever known, education for a larger per cent of our young and those precious privileges of being able to say what we please, to write what we think, to go to the church we believe in, has made this land of ours the envy of the world.

Yes, we have endured 10 years of "hard times" during which, for the first time in our history, we have failed to advance our standard of living. But our country is still rich in natural resources, still underpopulated, and we still have that genius for invention, production and organization that has built up the greatest industrial system ever known.

When the world finds Peace again and industry can once more devote itself to the production of the myriad items that make the life of the average man and woman easier and more beautiful and our power as a nation to an increase of individual opportunity, then indeed those better days will come nearer!

WEEKLY NEWS ANALYSIS

A Non-Partisan Editorial Review of the Events of Each Week, Illustrated

EDITOR'S NOTE—When opinions are expressed in these columns, they are those of the news analyst, and not necessarily of this newspaper.

THE WAR:
Whither, Hitler?

It really looked as if the German invasion of England was called off for the season. The fog was getting worse, and the channel was getting stormier. The German flat-boats along the Franco-Flemish coastline had taken an awful hammering from the royal air force, and that seemed to be that.

The low-down was simply this: The Germans had gone through France, like a knife through a hunk of over-ripe cheese. It surprised everybody, including the Germans themselves. They had expected victory—but only after a much harder fight than they got. Hence, when they landed on the French and Flemish coasts, they were far, far ahead of schedule, and totally unprepared for any proper invasion of the British Isles. The net result has been the aerial duel that has raged all over western Europe. The hammer of Thor is battering the British anvil, but to what ultimate purpose, none can tell.

But if invasion of England was not under way, Hitler's troops were by no means idle. For from Bucharest came word that German troops had entered Rumania. Berlin sources confirmed this news and readily explained the purpose of the infiltration. They said that oil and gasoline supplies are essential to the Nazi war machine and that they had heard rumors of an English plot to sabotage these supplies.

Rumania's government, now under control of the dictator Ion Antonescu, had earlier charged that British oil men with interests in Rumania had plotted to blow up oil fields. There was some indication, too, that the Nazi soldiers would be used in training Rumanian troops and would also assist in building a large naval and air base on the Black sea.

Italo

Meanwhile, the Italians had bogged down in Egypt. They had invaded the land of the Pharoas from their own Libyan colony, next door, and were proceeding along the coast. Their ultimate objective was the Suez canal, England's trap-door at the eastern end of the Mediterranean. But, it appears, the Italians did not do so well. The Germans began to take over the direction of the Egyptian campaign. It was rumored that the Nazis would "whither in Egypt," while the Goering flying circus continued to make Hitler-hush out of London. It was believed that

If the Germans really went to work in Egypt, they would perhaps clean up the place, and the Suez canal, too. Egypt itself, supposedly an English ally, like Turkey, another English ally, continued to be a neutral.

Aero

The royal air force, outnumbered 3 to 1 in planes, and 4 to 1 in pilots, continued to get in some terrific wall-pops at Berlin. They drove 4,000,000 Berliners underground, time and again. Just the same, the royal air force pilots (who had to fight perhaps 12 times per week) were getting tired. Their Teuto-opponents had "trade-unions" flying hours of only once or twice per week, with plenty of rest in between.

ASIA:

Trouble Ahead?

Events in the Orient worried U. S. State Department officials to the point of informing consulates in China, Manchukuo, French-Indo-China and Japan, that American citizens within those territories should return to this country as soon as possible. Especial emphasis was placed on the early departure of all women and children and men in non-essential posts.

Approximately 9,000 white Americans live within the affected zone, plus some 2,000 Chinese-Americans and Japanese-Americans.

NEVILLE:

Chamberlain

Neville Chamberlain finally left the British cabinet. Winston Churchill had taken away his premiership last May, but Chamberlain's pale ghost had lingered on in the cabinet. Then Chamberlain had a serious operation, for an intestinal obstruction, and his health visibly slowed up after that. His retirement had been expected for some time. Chamberlain was also the official leader of the powerful Conservative party, which has a heavy majority in parliament. This had been an added tower of strength to the so-called "great appeaser."

Chamberlain and Churchill had always been unfriendly. The former was a typical Nineteenth-century Victorian (rather of the Tory type) while the other tends to be a dashing, reckless cross between the Eighteenth and the Twentieth centuries (more the aristocratic liberal type). Churchill used to call Chamberlain (too the story goes)—"the undertaker from Birmingham."

Labor

Ernest Bevin, a radical Labor man, was admitted to the inner British war cabinet. Bevin had been the engineering brain behind the terrific British general strike, back in 1926, which very nearly succeeded. His executive, driving genius has been an important factor in the present war, and people spoke of him as Churchill's future successor. If Bevin did actually succeed Churchill, it would mean some sort of social revolution in England, and the Tories realize this. But Labor is getting more and more of its members into the British government, Hugh Dalton and Herbert Morrison being two of the other "pink" up-and-comers.

DEFENSE:

army received no less than 24 old American tanks, which were shipped over on flat-cars, to Camp Burden, Ontario. The Canadians have gotten hold of no less than 200 Yankee "combat cars," as tanks are called officially. These tanks are six-tonners, lightly armed, and built in the period of 1918-21.

Most of the German tanks are SdKfz, made in central Thuringia. It was an old Jewish concern. The French tanks were chiefly Renaults, the Italian tanks were Fiat, and the British machines (recently lost at Dunkirk) were products of the Birmingham Small Arms company, commonly known as B. S. A. A large part of the new American tankage will be Chrysler-built. Russian tanks are B. S. A.'s, or else come from the Red Putilov works in Leningrad.

NAMES . . . in the news

Admiral Sir Edward Hatcliffe Garth Russell Evans, a Welshman, and a great naval hero of the first World war, became housing and shelter dictator of London, where German air raids have made housing and shelter vital things. Evans has also been president of Aberdeen university, and top-commander of the Australian navy.

Colonel and Mrs. Lindy Lindbergh gathered in a fourth child. This was their very first daughter. Their other two surviving children are Jon Morrow L. and Land Morrow L. Little Land was born in London in 1937. Lindy is a good isolationist, while his mother-in-law—Dwight Morrow's widow—is an interventionist. Mrs. Lindy's brand-new book, "The Wave of the Future," is just out—it's her third.

Ernst Weiss, the well-known Czechoslovak novelist, winner of the Olympia prize for literature in 1932, committed suicide. He did this by drinking the contents of a vial he had carried with him for years. He was—the story goes—trapped by the dread Nazi Gestapo in Paris. That's war.

Constance Bennett, who used to be the local prom queen when your commentator was in Princeton, flew to Reno to divorce Marquis Henri de la Falaise, for alleged "cruelty." They were married nine years ago, and have been separated for several years. The marquise had been wed to Glorious Gloria Swanson, Connie (as the boys used to call her) was the "ex" of the wealthy Phil Plant of New York. Meanwhile, Joan Blondell and Dick Powell (really married) came out in a strong Hollywood picture which showed (very strongly indeed) the traditional Hollywood disapproval of divorce. This did not deter Miss Bennett, and just a few others.

RUSSIA:
What Now?

Russia was of great interest for several reasons. One reason was this: It looked as if the Washingtonian state department would be forced to woo the Soviets, due to the squabbles with Japan in the Far East, and the Jap-German axis agreement. This was an all-round headache for a large and influential section of the American people, both religious and business-minded. Stalin is an even bigger rogue than Hitler, and these people also consider that reds are meaner than browns. This depends entirely on how you look at it. Meanwhile, Russian-German relations were progressively getting worse, under cover.

Then the Russians pulled a fast one—the Russians, the great foes of child-labor and youthful exploitation, Stalin dictated compulsory technical training for a million boys, between the ages of 14 and 17. All of them must put in four years on state jobs, following their period of instruction. The first call was scheduled for November 10, when 350,000 were to be railroaded into the Soviet railroad service. The 14 and 15-year-olds were to get the railway schools, and the others, the others. For the four-year hitch, they were exempt from military service.

Anti-Social

This labor speedup was interpreted as an additional fear, by the Soviets, of the Jap-German deal, which might squeeze Stalin in an east-west pincer. Critics observed that war and social progress do not mix. Sometimes, it is true, warfare brings about social reform. But oftener, war kills off social reform, as in wages and hours, and the right to strike. Soviet Russia, the French Popular Front, the Spanish ditto, and even the New Deal, when faced with war, had become socially hampered. Consider, for example, the sad fate of the French 40-hour week, the most liberal thing in the entire world, or Lenin's vanished Utopia, or the erstwhile liberties of "free" England. Mars—the old reactionary—had finished them off, with a grin and a happy, jolly smirk.

CAMPAIGN:

Roughage

One metal wastepaper basket
Three eggs
Melons and or tomatoes
One stone, via a dining-car window.

These were the tributes of certain enthusiastic New Dealers to Willkie, who was barn-storming around in Michigan. Detroit, especially, proved itself Rooseveltian, tough, and exuberant in its proletarian fervor, and in its roughhouse tactics.

Mr. Roosevelt and Boss Flynn, the Democratic campaign manager, were quick to repudiate such behavior, and they were courteous and correct in their sporting attitude. But it showed a significant thing, alas and alack. The wave of unthinking brutality which is sweeping the world, has its echoes even in the United States. The Detroit incidents seemed un-American, but they did not seem un-totalitarian, somehow. Willkie took the matter in a spirit of good humor.

Sidelight

This sidelight might well be labelled "ouch." It hurt. Three of the Michigan egg-throwers contra Willkie, were young lads of 15 or 16. They came from Pontiac, and they evidently took after big chief Pontiac, who panicked plenty of Yankees in his time. The juvenile court judge sentenced the three raddies to "a good old-fashioned whipping." Juvenile authorities offered to do the triple-job, but the atonal parents volunteered to do it themselves. Then the guilty were to write apologies, to be read in person before the student body of the Pontiac high school. Just how hard the parents beat the offspring, nobody seemed to know. Two other boys, implicated in the great eggy putsch, escaped the corporal punishment of the luckless trio afore mentioned.

NAZI:

Nags

German soldiers and German farmers are reported as having a very tough time in teaching the dulcet Teuton tongue to draft horses, requisitioned from France, Poland, Belgium and the Netherlands. There are a great many of these, ranging from the elephantine percherons of Belgium and northern France, to the wiry little ponies of the flat Polish steppe. The huge percherons, by the way, are the direct descendants of the old-time steeds of medieval knights. They can't gallop; they can only trot.

German grammar, always intricate, according to foreign correspondents, is giving the kidnapped horses special trouble. Dutch and French grammar is much simpler.

MISCELLANY:

H. G. Wells came over for a visit. We had already had Bertrand, Earl of Russell, Sir Norman Angell, and Sir George Paish, not to mention Capt. Alfred Duff Cooper and Lady Diana Manners.

None of these gentlemen agreed about anything. H. G., for instance, hoped the United States would stay out of the war. He also denounced the religious Lord Halifax (a semi-mystic with one arm) as "the quintessence of all that England should be afraid of." Lord Halifax is the British foreign minister, and a super-aristocrat, while Wells is inclined to the plebeian side, genius or no genius.

Wells said London was betting 10 to 1 against a German invasion in 1940. Like a good many others, he disapproved of the evacuation of children to the New World. He was pleased by the Chamberlain ouster. He added that Hitler was at the end of his "lether." He described some of the German pilots shot down over England, as merely boy-gangsters, and hardly trained aviators at all. The Wellsian freedom of speech was a happy augur of British democracy, even under the Churchill dictatorship.

Government Armament Program Presages Huge Business Boom

Federal Spending Is on Scale Unprecedented in History; Senator Johnson May Swing California Vote From Roosevelt to Willkie.

By CARTER FIELD
(Released by Western Newspaper Union.)
WASHINGTON. — A tremendous boom in all lines of business is expected by many far-sighted manufacturers. One of the best statements of the situation as viewed by some economists, as a result of the tremendous government spending only partially under way, is set forth in the following letter Eugene F. McDonald Jr., president of Zenith Radio corporation, has sent to all his dealers.

"Never in history from Caesar to the present day has any nation prepared a program of armament and spending equal to that which exists right here in the United States today.

"Every dollar goes to labor and profit. Do not pass this statement off lightly. Iron ore, lumber, cotton, etc., is nothing but labor with a minor part to profit.

"Please keep this fundamental in mind: of our government armament spending—over 90 per cent will go to labor and less than 10 per cent to profit.

HIRAM W. JOHNSON

Half Billion Dollars To Be Spent Monthly

"From July, 1940, to July, 1941, the government will spend 5,000,000,000 defense dollars in the United States.

"In August the government spent only $180,000,000 on this program, which means the program must rise from now on to $500,000,000 per month to meet the year's total.

"Figure out what 500,000,000 ADDITIONAL dollars each month means to business. Business started ahead and looked upon the spending of the soldiers' bonus as a gift at the time. Yet, this soldiers' bonus represented only two monthly installments of $200,000,000 each and from now on that amount will be spent each month.

"The WPA in its heyday injected barely $140,000,000 a month into business. The AAA put in less than $75,000,000 a month on an average.

"The farmers' income, independent of all the above this year, will be the second largest since 1920.

Chain Stores Show Increased Retail Sales

"The present defense program anticipates over $26,000,000,000 expenditure up to and including 1945, of which the $5,000,000,000 to be spent this year is only a small part. In August this year, when only $180,000,000 of the $5,000,000,000 for this year was spent, the 30 leading store chains of the United States increased their business from 31 per cent to 33 per cent over August, 1939. Not one of these store chains showed a decrease. Every one of these 30 leading chains showed an increase in the eight months of 1940 over 1939 up to August, and mind you, the spending had hardly started then.

"In other words, all these defense billions that are to be spent this year are plus expenditures which come on top of the already splendid increasing business.

"The draft will increase business. The majority of men drafted will be single and certainly these men have not averaged $30 per month, net, to spend in civilian life after they have paid for lodging, board, and clothing. The soldiers and the sailors spend their money."

Johnson May Swing California to Willkie

One of the most important personalities in this presidential campaign may turn out to be Hiram W. Johnson, U. S. senator from California for these many years.

California has 22 electoral votes. When she had only 13, she decided the presidential election of 1916.

Most of the figuring on electoral votes this campaign—on the assumption that the election may be fairly close—has given California unquestionably to Roosevelt.

Folks began wondering about California when President Roosevelt went out of his way to slap Hiram Johnson, just on the eve of the California primaries. Everybody who knew anything about politics in the state was writing to friends in Washington that Johnson was almost certain to capture both the Republican and the Democratic nominations for re-election as senator.

Yet the President was so annoyed with Johnson for various reasons that he permitted himself to be quoted by the newspaper correspondents to the broad general effect that Johnson could no longer be considered a "liberal."

Johnson didn't like that a bit. He regards himself as having been an outstanding liberal since long before Roosevelt knew his way around in politics.

Most commentators on this slap of Roosevelt at Johnson have based it on Johnson's opposition to helping Britain. This is NOT the real reason.

Roosevelt's dislike of Johnson goes back to the time Roosevelt tried to pack the Supreme court. Johnson was one of the little group that fought this so bitterly that it was eventually defeated. Just as he was one of the group that fought President Wilson on the League of Nations and other features of the Versailles treaty.

It was not the failure of Johnson to change his policy on international questions that brought forth Roosevelt's ire. It was his battle against enlarging the Supreme court.

Defeat of Johnson Is Now Impossible

Every man who fought the President on that issue has been marked in the White House black book ever since. That of course was admittedly the chief motive in the unsuccessful attempt to "purge" Democratic senators in 1938. This year the attempt to purge was renewed, and with more success. As a part of it, Sen. Edward R. Burke was defeated for renomination in Nebraska. Sen. William H. King of Utah was also defeated for renomination as a part of it.

Defeat of Johnson is now impossible. It was impossible when the President slapped him, but the feeling was so strong that the President would not be politic.

Several observers believe that if Johnson is mad enough to denounce F. D. R. and support Willkie in a few speeches before election, Willkie will carry the state.

But that does not mean that Johnson, though a Republican, is going to support Wendell Willkie. Nobody knows what he is going to do. All we know is that he is very bitter against Roosevelt.

An interesting sidelight on the demoralizing bombardment of London has developed in Washington. Reports from Britain indicate that this constant bombing has tended to stiffen the resistance of the English people. British sympathizers here are presenting another plan by which material aid can be extended to the defenders. This group has organized itself into the American Committee for Defense of British Homes. This committee was formed by a group of well-known sportsmen and explorers who, hearing of the British people's need for small arms, ammunition and binoculars, decided to do something about it. The decision has resulted in a nationwide drive for sporting rifles, shotguns, and pistols, ammunition and binoculars.

A Mirage Complicates War in the Desert

By Thomas

Star Dust STAGE-SCREEN-RADIO

By VIRGINIA VALE
Released by Western Newspaper Union.

"THE Howards of Virginia" has been released, and people are trying to concoct new bouquets to throw at it. One of New York's best film critics, Bosley Crowther, wrote, "Never, to our recollection, has the screen pictured in more magnificent detail the period of American history preceding and including the Revolution."

Even if American history doesn't mean much to you, you'll want to see the picture. Frank Lloyd has done a masterful job of directing,

MARTHA SCOTT

Martha Scott, Cary Grant, Sir Cedric Hardwicke, and the rest of the cast give excellent performances, and the life of Colonial Virginia has been magnificently reproduced.

There's an old saying in show business: "Always be kind to the property boy. He may be the boss tomorrow."

Edward Arnold, Gary Cooper, Barbara Stanwyck and James Gleason were reminiscing on Frank Capra's "Meet John Doe" set at Warners'. Gleason told of starring 30 years ago in his father's company at the old Morosco and Burbank theaters. Then Capra joined the group, and reminded them that among the players in that company were Marjorie Rambeau, Lewis Stone and others still prominent.

"Did you ever see them?" asked Gleason, in surprise.

"I should say I did," laughed Capra. "I saw them every night. I used to sell newspapers to them."

The special effects department at Paramount could have been forgiven for going stark, staring mad recently when an order came in for a flock of sheep that "look like Jack Benny." The sheep were needed for a dream sequence in "Love Thy Neighbor," in which Fred Allen, Benny's mortal enemy, puts himself to sleep by counting sheep.

Allen insisted that finding the sheep should be easy. "All sheep look like Benny," he insisted. "Benny looks like a sheep anyway."

For once the cast of a motion picture seems to be taking the title seriously. The title is "This Thing Called Love," and it's influencing Rosalind Russell, Binnie Barnes and Gloria Dickson.

Three days after the picture had gone into production Miss Barnes announced her plan to marry Mike Frankovitch, radio commentator. Rumors circulated to the effect that Miss Dickson and her husband, Perc Westmore, would become reconciled. Nobody knows yet what will happen to Miss Russell, but just before the picture was begun she caught the bridal bouquet at her sister's wedding, and the day preceding that a fortune teller predicted that she'd be married within a year.

Neighbors Can't Chat

When one Norwegian meets another they can't always hold a conversation. Norway has two separate languages, which are entirely different. In Viking days all Scandinavians spoke the same language. But as the land split up into different countries languages altered. Norway was a Danish colony from 1397 to 1814, and Danish was spoken. In 1814 Norway broke away and insisted on a language of her own. Ivar Aasen, a Norwegian scholar, compiled a language called Landsmaal, based on the old Scandinavian tongue. The rival Norwegian language based on Danish is called Rimskaal. The two languages have equal status, and—up to now—a citizen has been free to learn either or both.

Why Let Yourself Get Constipated?

Why endure those dull headachy days due to constipation, plus the inevitable trips to the medicine chest, if you can avoid both by getting at the cause of the trouble? If your constipation, like that of millions, is due to lack of "bulk" in the diet, the "better way" is to eat Kellogg's All-Bran. This crunchy toasted breakfast cereal is the ounce of prevention that's worth a pound of emergency relief. It helps you not only to get regular but to keep regular, day after day and month after month, by the pleasantest means you ever knew. Eat Kellogg's All-Bran regularly, drink plenty of water, and see if you don't forget all about constipation. Made by Kellogg's in Battle Creek. If your condition is chronic, it is wise to consult a physician.

From 'Sit-Fires' to Spitfires

A government appeal for aluminum pots and pans brought thousands of tons of these kitchen utensils from all over England into the rapacious maw of Britain's war machine. From sitting on fires these pots and pans will go to cloud-hopping in defense of the tight little island. At left, workmen are cleaning the aluminum scrap. Right, tons of ingots, once stewpots, on their way to become "Spitfires" and Hurricane planes.

How Many Boys and Girls Here?

At first glance it seems that boy and girl are meeting their reflections in a mirror here. Actually, four people are in the picture—two sets of twins from one family. They are Johnay and Jimmy Elmke, 12, and their sisters, Erma and Erna, 13, of St. Louis, photographed during the Twins convention held there recently. You can guess which pair is playing the reflection.

Dormitory Officers
In keeping with the policy inaugurated this year at Gould Academy which is attempting to bring the management of the official and dormitory life of the school partially under their own control, the members of both the boys' and girls' dormitory units met about two weeks ago and prepared a slate of dormitory officers for each organization.

In the boys' dormitory Hartwell
Blanchard of Worcester, Mass., and Eric Brown of North Tarrytown, N. Y., were chosen Senior representative on the council.
Elmer Runyon of Waterford was elected to represent the Junior group. The Sophomores chose
Robert Golderman of Mechanic
Falls, and the Freshmen, David Hawkins of Concord, Mass.

This group of five boys meets regularly with the head of the dormitory to talk over ways and means of carrying on the life in that building. Several suggestions have already been made and steps taken to bring about a better relationship between the students and teachers. A room has been fitted up in the dormitory to serve as a music room. A piano has been placed there together with several easy chairs, and a boy wishing to play the piano or any instrument is free to use it at any time.

A discussion as to whether a boy be allowed to have a radio in his room has also been held,
and no definite decision has yet been reached. However, they are drawing up regulations and trying to study means whereby they can get good reception without outside antennas.

In the girls' dormitory a slightly different decision of members among the different classes has been used, and the Freshmen are of represented.

Miss Lucia Packard of Augusta and Miss Marian Wight of Thomaston, Conn., were chosen as Senior representatives. Rachel Field of Hebron was to represent the Juniors and Ruth Areson the Sophomores.

It is the hope of the administration that many of the small minor details when carried out by the students will make for a much smoother running organization that the students will read-

The door opened before Debby reached it. John stood there, smiling, his face glowing with cold above the collar of the bear skin coat, his hat in his hand.

"Hello—" he said. The smile faded as his eyes moved questioningly about the room. "What's the matter?" he asked hesitantly. "What's going on here?"

Debby conquered her sobs. Her head lifted.

"Gay wants to take me back to New York with her," she said, "and Mother won't let me go."

"So you threw a tantrum." Over Debby's head John's eyes flashed a question at Gay. She tried to smile reassuringly but his expression, concerned and apprehensive, told her that she had not succeeded.

"I think it is wiser for Debby to remain at home," Gay said, "and Houghton's eyes, lifted quickly to her son, were frightened, now, heard the shaken note in her voice."

"Wiser!" Debby's voice rose again to an hysterical pitch. She whirled from her mother to face John, standing grave and silent in the doorway. "You know why she won't let me go. You know that she doesn't approve of—"

"Go to your room, Debby," John's voice, cutting through her hysterical outburst, silenced Debby. She went past him out of the room, her head drooping again, her defiance crumpling beneath his stern, uncompromising expression. Sarah followed. The door closed.

CHAPTER XIV

"What is it, Mother?" John threw off his coat and walked to the hearth. "What started this? What is it all about?"

"I don't think we need to discuss it," Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. Her hands manipulated the under needles steadily. Only the dull red flush that burned in her cheeks betrayed any inward agitation.

"I don't agree with you," John stood with his back to the fire, his hands behind him, looking at his mother. "I don't think we need to discuss it," Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. Her hands manipulated the under needles steadily. Only the dull red flush that burned in her cheeks betrayed any inward agitation.

"What is it, Mother?" John threw off his coat and walked to the hearth. "What started this? What is it all about?"

"I don't think we need to discuss it," Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. "I don't agree with you," John stood with his back to the fire, his hands behind him, looking at his mother. "I don't think we need to discuss it," Ann Houghton resumed her knitting. During the interval of silence which had followed the closing of the door, she had regained her composure. Her hands manipulated the under needles steadily. Only the dull red flush that burned in her cheeks betrayed any inward agitation.

John, its effect upon him, pity crystallized into resentment. Debby's accusations had held a measure, at least, of truth. If she had not seen Ann Houghton's gesture in John's room this morning, if she had not had that revealing glimpse of the possessive passion which burned beneath her controlled and reasonable manner with her children, she might now be convinced that only wisdom motivated the decision she had made. But she had seen. She knew—

"You know how difficult Debby has been," Ann Houghton replied, her eyes holding John's troubled glance. "This year, especially. She's just beginning to show a real interest in the courses she's taking at the high school. I'm sure it would be unwise to allow her to make a break now."

John stood there, smiling.

"Perhaps you're right," John said dutifully.

"I offered to have her tutored in the courses she's taking," Gay said, "but she'd rather go to a business school. It's quite probable that she might make more rapid progress with a tutor than in a class at the high school here."

She had not meant to give an impression of patronage. But that, she saw, was the effect of her words upon Ann Houghton, upon John.

John's mother said, "but quite unnecessary."

John gave a short laugh. "You aren't going to assume full responsibility for all of us, are you?" he asked. "I think we can leave Debby's education to Mother."

"I wasn't thinking of Debby's education," she said lightly. "I thought she would enjoy a visit in New York and that I would enjoy having her there. My motives, as usual, I'm afraid, were almost entirely selfish."

John looked at her, then, questioningly, pleadingly. She smiled and his face cleared.

"She would enjoy it," he said. "She's always been crazy about you. The idea of you before she met you, I suppose, now, after these past three days, she's your slave." He turned to his mother. "Let her go with Gay, Mother. She isn't doing much here."

The distance between them narrowed. Gay's spirits lifted. It was as though he had come to stand beside her and taken her hand in his.

"I don't feel that it would be wise," John, Ann Houghton said reasonably, quietly. "Debby is impressionable and immature. It would be mistaken kindness, if you'll permit me to express myself frankly, Gay, to give her, at this time, a taste of something she can't have permanently. I'm afraid she would be more discontented than ever when she returned."

"Good Lord, Mother," John's voice held a note of irritation. "Nobody wants to eat fruit cake for every meal, but it's pleasant once in a while."

Ann Houghton smiled faintly.

"I think that sort of fruit cake, just now," she said, "would be very bad for Debby. With this notion she has of singing on a radio program or in some place of entertainment, I'm afraid that being in New York with Gay would turn her head completely."

"I shouldn't allow her to do anything of which you would disapprove," Mrs. Houghton.

"I don't question that, but your life is so different from our life here. I'm afraid that the contrast—"

"You know Debby is a chameleon, Mother. She adapts herself easily to any environment."

"That's just why I don't—" she broke off, glanced quickly at John, at Gay. "I'm not presuming to criticize your mode of living, Gay, but I'm convinced that for Debby, just at this time—if it were Sarah, that would be a different matter." She folded her knitting into the bag. "I shouldn't think you would want her for a visit after the scene you've just witnessed. I feel that she, that I, owe you an apology."

"No, please, Mrs. Houghton. She was terribly disappointed. It was my fault. I should have consulted you. It's all right. I understand how you feel, but I'm disappointed too."

John made a restless movement on the hearth. "Then it's settled, isn't it? Debby doesn't go back to New York with Gay. Now may we talk of something else? Food, for instance. I'm starved. Did Huldah make chocolate doughnuts? Come out to the kitchen with me, Gay."

Ann Houghton rose from her chair. "If you please, John, I'd like you to go to Debby with me."

"Oh, let her alone. You know how she is when she's had a tantrum. Don't play up to her and she'll get over it."

"I don't think she's well. She's not been herself these past few days."

"You'll turn her into a neurotic if you don't stop coddling her."

"Debby is sensitive in a way which I think I understand better than you."

John turned to Gay in smiling exasperation. "What was the use of my spending four years in medical school and two years interning when mother, by instinct, knows more than I do about my profession?"

Again a faint chilling smile touched Ann Houghton's lips.

"I should like you to go with me, John," she repeated. "Debby is nervous and excited. She'll probably need a sedative to put her to sleep. The doughnuts will wait, and Gay will excuse you for a few minutes, I'm sure."

"Certainly, Mrs. Houghton."

"Back in a minute, Gay," John's eyes were pleading. His smile was strained.

"Good-night, Gay."

"Good-night, Mrs. Houghton."

John went out of the room with his mother. The door closed. Gay stood leaning against the back of the chair, staring into the fire.

Gay did not turn when the door opened. She remained seated in the chair beside the hearth, looking up at the painting above the mantel.

"Were you asleep?" John asked, coming to the chair. "I'm sorry I've been so long."

"No, not asleep. I've been getting acquainted with the gentleman up there. It's your great-grandfather, isn't it?"

"Abner Houghton—yes."

"You don't look like him. In an hour of intensive study I haven't been able to find a trace of resemblance."

"I'm sorry it's been an hour. I wanted to get back to you." He bent to lift her hands lying in her lap. "Come over here where we can be close together. I haven't kissed you for three days."

If you knew what Mother's life has been.

"Has it been only three days?"

"Darling, have you been miserable?"

She drew her hands from his, sat looking down at them, silent.

"What is it? What are you thinking?"

"I want to go with you tomorrow."

"Into Portland? I meant to take you."

"And then on to New York—tomorrow."

"But Mary expects you to stay. And the kids. Nat made me promise to bring you."

"That's dear of them, but—"

"Look at me, Gay."

She raised her head. Seeing his grave and troubled face, she gave a little cry. He bent toward her. Her arms went around his neck. Their lips met and clung. Presently he drew away, straightened, took her hands to pull her up from the chair.

"Did taking Debby to New York mean so much to you?"

"I should have enjoyed having her, but that isn't important."

"That act she pulled must have been unpleasant for you."

"It wasn't an act." She sat beside him on a sofa with a high back curled at one end like a snail. "Debby meant every word she said."

He looked searchingly into her eyes.

"Do you believe that, Gay?"

"Of course I believe it. I've been here for three days."

"Mother told me. I hadn't realized—"

"I don't want to discuss your mother, John."

"But you can't believe the things Debby said were true."

"They are true. I'm sorry if it offends you but you asked for it."

He drew a little away from her. "Mother is only thinking of what is best for Debby. She is emotional and immature, and she has this notion about singing—"

"Why shouldn't she have a chance?"

"That isn't what Mother wants for Debby."

"What does she want for Debby?"

"She wants her to go to college."

"So that Debby can spend the rest of her life being grateful to her?" Her voice softened. "Oh, I am sorry, John. I shouldn't have said that."

"You can say what you like to me, what you think, how you feel."

"No, I can't. When I do, we quarrel. Debby isn't important insofar as we are concerned. But your mother is. She doesn't want Debby to go to New York with me because she's afraid of me, of the things I can do for her. She wants to be everything to all of you."

"That's natural, isn't it?"

"Natural, perhaps, but selfish. Yes, selfish, John. Can't you see?"

"If you knew what Mother's life has been. Her every thought has been for us."

"It would have been better for her, for you, if she had to plan for us, Gay. There wasn't much money. You can't understand, I suppose."

"No, frankly, I can't."

"That's because you have the protection of wealth," he said stiffly.

"Oh, money! Because my grandfathers left a trust fund for me, we bicker and quarrel. You attach too much importance to what I have."

"It isn't because you have it now," he said slowly, with measured deliberation. "It's because you've always had it. From the hour you were born every thought you've had, every move you've made, has been colored and shaped by the fact that both your grandfathers were wealthy men. Your mother—"

"How absurd we are!" She gave a short strained laugh. "In New York we quarreled because my mother did not display a properly maternal attitude. Now we quarrel because your mother is a model of maternal devotion. Oh, is it important, John?"

"We are each of us the product of our separate environments," he said carefully, thoughtfully. "You had nurses and governesses. You were sent to camps, to schools, to the sea-shore in summer, to dancing class. For your birthdays magicians were hired to entertain you and your guests. When you were sick there were nurses. Mother did everything for us. When we were sick, she couldn't afford to engage a trained nurse. There was no money for elaborate toys, amusement, entertaining. Mother made fun for us at home. She scrimped and saved to send me to college, to send Sarah. She managed it in ways you couldn't understand, hamburger instead of steak, never quite enough heat in the house, dried vegetables instead of fresh ones in winter. Sarah's dresses made over for Debby—"

Many Non-Metal Parts

Are Used in Automobile

Steel and iron are the basic materials of automobile construction but a surprising number of non-metallic substances enter also. Rubber is the principal contributor to quiet, vibration-free riding, providing cushions between frame and body, bumpers to take the shock of slamming doors, windlances and gaskets to keep out drafts, cement to seal joints along the floor, pads to keep feet from sliding off the pedals, hose for radiator, heater and windshield wiper, mats for running boards and floor.

All told, a number of cars have as many as 250 rubber parts, and one of current manufacture has 335. Sixty pounds of rubber products apart from tires is not unusual in a car.

Next to rubber perhaps the most useful non-metallic ingredients are the plastics which serve many useful purposes of which some are conspicuously new, though really belonging to a family of products with which engineers have been long familiar. It was at least three decades ago that phenolic resins were taken up as substitutes for defective electrical insulation. Today, similar synthetic products are widely used also for steering wheel rims, control knobs, instrument panels and elsewhere.

Household News By Eleanor Howe

Apples hold a place of well-deserved popularity today, for they have been widely used as food from the earliest times. What other fruit has such a long season, tastes so good, keeps so well, can be served in so many different ways, and yet is relatively inexpensive?

Do you want apples for cooking, or for baking? Or do you want them for eating apples or dessert? Apples should be selected according to the purpose for which you are to use them.

A good cooking apple should be tart, or at least medium acid, with a juicy, fine-grained flesh. A good cooking apple, however, should have a distinct apple flavor. You are, no doubt, familiar with such names as Rome Beauty, Winesap, Black Twig, Grimes Golden and McIntosh.

Have you ever had the sad experience of baking apples only to find that they have remained hard and lack juiciness? Or did you use a variety that became so watery upon baking that you couldn't quite tell what it was? The Wealthy, McIntosh, Grimes Golden, Jonathan, Rhode Island Greening or Northwestern Greening, the Rome Beauty, the Winesap and Black Twig are all varieties of apples which may be used for this purpose.

A good dessert apple should have a prominent and distinct apple flavor, mildly acid, and with a fine-flesh texture. Here again you may select the McIntosh, the Grimes Golden, the Jonathan, the Rome Beauty, the Black Twig, or the Delicious.

A bowl of shining apples will appeal to the children when they come home from school. There will be no need for them to say, "Mom, I'm hungry; what can I have to eat?" The Wealthy, the Delicious, and the Rome Beauty are all popular eating apples.

OFF THE FACE

"Snappy Saffor" is what Eleanor Powell calls her perky new fall bonnet. It is soft blue and has a light-fitting head band of grosgrain ribbon falling into shoulder length streamers. The hat fits well back on the head, with slight shirring concentrated behind, where it fits into the dark blue streamers.

Strange Facts

Roving Banks
Prison Board Bill
Odd Sugar Sources

¶ About a century ago when some states allowed banks to move from town to town at will, many went into hiding so their notes could not be presented for redemption in gold. One of them, the Bank of Morocco, was found by detectives, after a year's search, in a cabin in a dense Indiana forest.

¶ Although Michigan enacted a law in 1935 requiring prisoners who are financially able to pay for their maintenance (about a dollar a day) the state has only been able to collect this payment from two of the approximate 20,000 persons who have passed in and out of its prisons during this time.

¶ Of the hundreds of different kinds of sugars, some of which are bitter and poisonous, many are made from such odd substances as seaweed, cottonmeal, chicory, dahlias, artichokes and ivory nuts.—Collier's.

Secret of Greatness

It is easy in the world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after our own; but the great man is he who in the midst of the crowd keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Ralph Waldo Emerson.
